SATURDAY, JANUARY 10, 1857.

New Money .- We noticed a few days since the receipt of a specimen of the new cent coin. It is now our pleasure to announce the issue of still another new species of money, which will have great currency in this section. We refer to the notes of the new State Bank of Indiana, which institution went into operation on the first of the year, and has branches Jeffersonville and New Albany. We have scarcely ever seen better looking money. By the use of two colors on the face of the note, counterfeiting them by the photographic process is rendered impossible, for in photographing the paper must first be saturated with nitrate of silver to produce black, and before chemicals will act to produce colors the nitrate of silver must be washed or soaked out. This, however, it is impossible to do without destroying the paper. The counters or lathe work around the figures in each upper corner are also very finely engraved, and would be difficult to counterfeit. The vignettes, though not as fine as the counters, are still very handsome. That on the Fives is a female figure, representing a shepherdess watching over her flock. That on the Tens has four figures, representing agriculture, manufactures and commerce taking lessons of science; and that on the Twenties two human figures, representing agriculture and commerce in the act of making a trade, while a dog (Fidelity) is watching to secure perfect

The scroll work on the back of the notes in red, is alike for all denominations. It covers the entire back, but the work immediately about the letters "Ten" or "Twenty" is much the finest, and is designed as another safeguard against successful imi-

Missing Lecturers .- We are fearful that the literary world has suffered an irreparable loss in the eclipse of several of its leading stars. Some weeks ago the Young Mem's Association of this city advertised a course of lectures, and designated the names of a number of gentlemen who were to lecture. We had supposed every arrangement consummated and that ere this Louisville would be enjoying the pleasure of listening to words of wisdom, from some of the first intellects in the country, But, as is too common with every species of enterprise in Louisville, there has been a failure. We have had no lectures. The eminent men are missing, while the public awaits with anxiety some movement from the Young Men's Christian Asso-

Really we are ashamed of our city in this matter. We know that the young men have acted with all due energy and propriety, and it is singular, that, while all other cities can sustain courses of popular lectures, there is such an apathy here. It is not, we feel sure, from any lack of literary taste, but results from a species of careless indifference that ap pears to be characteristic of the place and its inhabi-

THE U. S. AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY .- We are gratified to be able to announce that the committee appointed to procure the guaranty requisite to induce the United States Agricultural Association to hold their next annual exhibition at the Fair Grounds near our city, have been entirely successful in procuring a subscription of the whole amount proposed to be guarantied. Much credit is due to the committee for the promptness and energy with which this duty has been performed, and especially to Messrs. Miller and Dulaney, who undertook the task with a zeal and energy that entitles them to the thanks of the whole community, and performed, as we understand, the greater part of the work.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The weather moderated very much yesterday. Throughout the afternoon the thermometer stood above freezing point. There is no change to notice in the river. It is very low and the ice is very heavy. The agent of the Cincinnati board of underwriten's has ordered the Gen. Pike, which is in the ice abov e, to be unloaded, and her crew were employed yest rday in taking her cargo ashore over the ice. The agent has also ordered the ice to be cut away from the Landis and other boots which are frozen in at the landing with the stern turned up stream, and to be pulled around, as in their present position the ice could cut them down when it breaks

The James Montgomery .- We are indebted to a gentlemau who was a passenger on this steamer to Cairo, and who came from that point by railroad, for New Orleans papers of the 1st and 2d. The Montgomery reached Cairo on Thursday morning. Capt. Montgomery intended to go to PaducJh, where he would unload his boat, and then return to New Or-

By Adams & Co.'s Express we received at 2 o'clock yesterday St. Louis papers of the preceding evening.

Last night and to-day the weather has been by far Last night and to-day the weather has been by har the coldest of the season; and the ice in the river this morning was floating past the city in larger quantities than for several days past. We see no prospect, however, of thr river closing, as the gorges that have formed above Alton, in the Mississippi, and at Howard bend, in the Missouri, will keep the floating ice back, and all that is seen in the river here, is made back, and seen the river here, is made to be the restrict when here here the restrict was have hed no news from the back, and air that is seen in the river here, is made below those points. We have had no news from the river or boats between here and Cairo, for the past three days. The water at this point is falling very slowly, and there cannot be more than four and a half feet in the channel to Cairo.

The steamer A. C. Goddin has been sold to Tracy & Lewis, of St. Louis, and H. L. Williams, of Glasgow, Mo., for $32,000.

Collision .- The steamer Southern Belle, bound for Vicksburg, and the steamer Duke, bound for Red river, came in collision on the night of the 30th ult., forty miles above New Orleans. The bows of the Duke struck the Southern Belle on the larboard side just forward of the wheel-house, and tore away a large portion of the guard, broke the hog-chains and Sampson-post, cut into the hull from the deck to the water's edge, and displaced the cylinder-plate and timbers. A large quantity of freight, which was on the guard, was, at the same time, pitched overboard. The Southern Belle returned to New Orleans for repairs.

The number of steamers was one less than in 1855, the tonnage 1,051 less. The number of keels, barges, and flatboats was 79 in 1856 against only 32 in 1855, increase 47; but their total tonnage was but 2,614 against 3,625 in 1855; showing a decrease of 1,001 tons. This falling off in tonnage of steamers and other craft, is ascribed, to the difference of the stage of water during the two years. In 1855, the river was at a good boating stage from early in the spring till late in the winter, while in 1856 the river vas not at a good navigable stage for ninety days.

Capt. Meekin's new steamer Baltic has been completed at New Albany. She is a magnificent boat, and will leave as soon as the river opens.

The Cincinnati Gazette, of yesterday, has the following river items:

The Ironton Register says the steamer Sciota No. 2 was forced on shore by the gorge at Cattlesburg, and now lies trim out of water. The steamer Cabiand the upper wharf-boat is also out of water.

Metal Boat Sunk.—A flatboat belonging to Joshua Oaks, of Haverhill, loaded with over 100 tons pig iron, sunk in 14 feet water.

A committee appointed by the citizens residing in the vicinity of the corner of Jefferson and Fifteenth streets waited on us last evening with a request to present their grievances through our columns to the mayor and general council. The committee stated that the citizens in that neighborhood are actually suffering for want of water. The pump in that locality has been out of order for upwards of a year. The pump-maker has tried his hand on it at various times, but without effect. The citizens have now to go nearly a quarter of a mile to get water. Cannot something be done to alleviate the suffering of humanity in that locality?

We think that the City Council is very un justly censured, by various papers and citizens, be cause sundry small items of indebtedness contracted by the city are not speedily liquidated. The real fault is with the people themselves. They have not been as prompt in the payment of their taxes a usual, and hence the deficiency in the treasury. The tax collectors have now in their possession bills amounting to $160,000, which is double the sum that ever before remained unpaid to so late a date These collectors are using all possible diligence, but the property owners are backward in settling up.

The lowest point reached by Fletcher & Bennett's spirit thermometer-hanging in the yardyesterday morning, was 130 above zero. mercurial thermometer, at 11 o'clock yestorday, stood at 250. The thermometer on the north side of our office, at 2 o'clock yesterday, stood at 310 above zero, and at 12 o'clock last night at 320.

CHRISTIAN CHARITY .- One of the most pleasan incidents of the season is the donation of fifty cords of wood by the members of the Christian Church a Eminence to the Church on the corner of Fourth and Walnut streets. It is to be distributed among the poor of the latter congregation.

The inaugural ceremonies connected with inducting Gov. Polk of Missouri into office, were delayed more than half an hour in consequence of there being no bible at the State House, and not a copy in the vicinity. One was finally obtained at the penitentiary.

H. M. McCarty, editor of the Bardstown Gaate, is in the city, at the St. Joseph Infirmary. We regret learning that he is still affected by the serious accident that occurred to him several months on the Illinois river sold at $17 00.

LEGISLATIVE Rows .- We noticed yesterday norning the double presidency in the Indiana State Senate. We find in the Indianapolis correspondence of the Cincinnati Gazette an explanatian of the phenomenon. The correspondent says: "It appears that within two days a rumor has spread among the Republicans that the Democrats had determined to caucus to reject four cirtificates of the Republican Senators, and organize the Senate with a Democratic majority, pass a resolution to go into joint election for U. S. Senator, and thus accomplish their object. This was to be done, rumor said, by Lieut. Gov. Willard, who acts as presiding officer in the Senate. This result the Republicans determined to prevent; accordingly, when the Senate met this norning, Lieut. Gov. Willard in the char, the Republicans nominated Mr. Burke, of Wayne, as presiding officer, and he took the desk beside Mr. Willard, thus making two bodies with two presiding officers in the same room; the Republicans contending that there was no law requiring the Lieutenant Gov ernor to preside during organization. Of course nothing could be done in this state of things without a compromise. The Republicans refused to yield without some assurance that they would be fairly dealt with. Lieut. Gov. Willard then stated that he would swear in three of the disputed men, but not the fourth. This was the case of Dr. Cooper, from Rush county, where the clerk had certified that Cooper had a majority of votes, but had not added that he was therefore elected Senator."

In the afternoon the Republicans agreed to the proposition of Lieut. Gov. Willard, to swear in all the Senators but Mr. Cooper. The oath was as cordingly administered, and the Senate was duly organized. A resolution was then offered instructing Willard to swear in Mr. Cooper, which he did. The Senate then elected J. S. Harvey, of Indianapolis, clerk, and Mr. Tyner, of Brookfield, assistant clerk

The Illinois State Legislature met on the 5th inst. and there the Democrats carried everything with the strong hand, resorting to force to effect an organization of the House after their own fashion. It is customary in all such bodies and in Congress for the old clerk to organize the new House. We find the following account of the organization of the Illinois Legislature in the editorial correspondence of a Chicago paper:

Mr. Brydges, the Clerk of the last House, went into the Hall and attempted to call the House to order, as was clearly his right, and as is the custom of Congress and of all the States. The opposition were there in force, and by concert with their two members from the contested districts, they put Dougherty of Union in the chair, elected John McConnell, of Morgan, temporary Clerk, and appointed a door-keeper. Mr. Brydges, still insisting that the rights of his office were encroached upon by this action, proceeded to call the roll of members. He was interrupted by a motion to expel him by force, which tion, proceeded to call the roll of members. He was interrupted by a motion to expel him by force, which was put and carried, in spite of the efforts of the Republicans, led by Arnold of Cook, to obtain a hearing. Mr. Greathouse seized upon the Clerk, and assisted by half a dozen confederates, thrust him out of the hall. After which the body, now fairly in the control of the rioters, went into other business. At this writing (12 M.) the roll is being called, and the prospect is that the permanent erganization will be soon completed by the election of the Democratic caucus ticket.

Costa Rica .- The correspondent of the New Oreans Picayune writes from Panama:

The Monarch brought dates from Punta Arenas up to December 3d. The papers are jubilant over the news that "Walker had been whipped and compelled to evacuate Granada, and take refuge on the Island of Ometepe, in the lake, with only 400 men." The people were subscribing money very liberally to carry on further operations against him, and "hundreds were eager to join the army against the filibusteros." There were twenty or thirty deserters from Walker's army in Punta Arenas, fourteen in La Union, and numbers in various other places.

THE HOG MARKET .- There was nothing whatver done in hogs yesterday. Holders, however, were very firm. The Cineinnati Commercial, of

There is a large demand for mess pork and bulk meat for future delivery, and all on the market was taken at $17 50 for mess pork, 7c for bulk shoulders, and 8½e for sides, but at the close there were no sellers at these rates, mess pork being held at $18, bulk sides at $8 %@6, and shoulders at 7½c. Bbl lard is generally held at 12c, with plenty of buyers. Parties who contracted to deliver 1,000 bbls. buyers. Parties who contracted to deliver 1,000 bbls lard, a few weeks ago, at 10c, in April next, offered to settle to-day, by paying $3,800, to annul the contract. The business doing in all kinds is of a pretty speculative character, and we notice, by looking over our exchanges, that the excitement has spread over the entire West; everything in the pork line is being eagerly sought after, and the most extravagant ideas are indulged in with reference to the future price of pork. That such a state of things will lead to a reaction, a panic and a decline, cannot be doubted.

The Springfield (Ill.) Journal, of the 6th, says; The packing business for the present season being nearly closed, we are enabled to present the following statement: Number of hogs killed by James L. Lamb and H. Jacoby & Co., up to January 1st, is 24,779; the average weight 221 lbs., being an increase in weight of about 6 per cent. over last year. The number killed here in 1855-56 was 31,000, of which 10,000 were shipped dressed to Northern and Eastern cities, leaving the remainder, 21,000, as the number necked here. This season the number agent number packed here. This season the number sent forward dressed will fall short of 1,000 head, and the season's business will foot up about 25,000 head. The San Antonio Herald, of the 20th, says:

Galveston News, of the 27th, says: The Galveston News, or the arth, says.

Arm and ammunition were discovered in several portions of the sounty, given to them, no doubt, by white men, who are now living among us, and who are constantly inciting ou slaves to deeds of violence and bloodshed.

Inasmuch as the appointment of County Coroner, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Dr. Lee White, which vacancy occurs on the 1st day of February next, is a matter of "seeming" interest to several, it may be proper to inquire whether the vacancy must be filled by the people or by the County Court.

As this is a constitutional office, we look first at the Constitution:

As this is a constitutional office, we look first at the Constitution:

1st. As to Term of Office.—See article 6, section 1—Same as the County Judge—four years.

2d. When to be Elected.—Art. 6, sec. 3.—Same time and manner as County Judge.

Then as to County Judge:
Art. 4, sec. 6.1.—First election to take place same time as Circuit Judge. The presiding Judge first elected shall hold his office until the 1st Monday in August, 1854; and afterwards elections shall be held on the 1st Monday in August in the years in which vacancies regularly occur.

Art. 4, sec. 3.1.—Judge of County Court to be elected by the qualified voters of the County for the term of four years.

sust in the years in which pacancies regularly occur.

Art. 4, sec. 31.—Judge of County Court to be elected by the qualified voters of the County for the term of four years.

Now, at the same time Judge Garland, the County Judge, was elected Dr. White was elected. The term of office of both expires on the 1st Monday of August, 1858.

Art. 6, sec. 7.—Vacancies in office under this article shall be filled until the next regular election in such manner as the General Assembly may provide.

The General Assembly may provided as follows:
Revised Statutes—Elections—Chap. 22, art. 6, sec. 5, and subdivision 1.—A vacancy in the office of Coroner, &c., shall be filled by the County Court until the next succeeding August election, which means of course "the next succeeding August election" at which, by the Constitution, the "regular vacancy occurs" in the office of Coroner, and in other offices named in said subdivision of said section means, if it could mean any other than that named in the Constitution, even if it should say it did, see Revised Statutes, chap. 21, art. 3, Coroners, secs. 11 and 12.

Sec. 11.—Whenever the office of Coroner shall become vacant, before the expiration of his constitutional term (4 years) of office, the County Court of his countily shall convene and appoint his successor, who shall be commissioned by the Governor for the residue of the term for which his predecessor was elected.

Sec. 12.—Whenever the office of Coroner shall become vacant, and one year of the term remains unexpired, the County Court of his county shall order an election to be held to fill the vacancy according to law (that is by the people). If there be less than a year unexpired, then the County Court of his county shall order an election to be commissioned by the Governor for the residue of the term.

commagained by the covernor for the restate of the term.

Now what is the term? Four year. When does it expire? The 1st Monday in August, 1858, for Lee White was elected on the 1st Monday in August, 1864. Judge Garland was then elected. Is there more than one year to trun from the 1st day of February, 1857, the 1st Monday of August, 1858? Yes, one year and six months. So the people of the county elect the Coroner to fill the vacancy, and the County Court does not appoint him. The County Court must order an election to fill the vacancy according to law. Let it be so done.

[From this morning's Journal.] THIRTY-FOURTH CONGRESS-SECOND SESSION.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.

Senate.-Mr. Seward introduced a bill to expedite telegraphic communication for the use of government in its foreign intercourse. It authorises the Secretary of State under the direction of the President to contract for the aid of the United States in down the submarine cable to connect existing telegraphs.

Mr. Seward based his argument in favor of Harlan's right to a seat on the ground that while legis-lative acts require the concurrent votes of the two branches of the Legislature, the act of choosing an Drancaes of the Legislature, the act of choosing an United States Senstor was not a legislative act, but merely an additional duty, which had been devolved upon members of the Legislature. When they performed this duty, it was in joint convention, the individuality of the two houses being merged and lost in the joint body. Mr. Stewart took the position that the election was unconstitutional and the re-port of the committee of the judiciary to that effect well founded.

Messrs. Brown and Hale favored the claim of the sitting member. Toucey and Douglas opposed it. No question taken.

On motion of Mr. Bell of New Hampshire, a res On motion of Mr. Bell of New Hampshire, a resolution was adopted requesting the President, if, in his opinion, not inconsistent with the public interest, to communicate to the Senate such information as may be on file in the Department of State relative to the interference at the Island of Aves, in the Carribean Sea, of the Venezuelian Government with American citizens who were rightfully in occupancy of said Island, as they believed, and engaged in collecting guano therefrom—said Government havof said Island, as they believed, and engaged in collecting guano therefrom—said Government having foreibly ejected the said American citizens from their lawful employment. And also to communicate what measures, if any, have been taken by the Government of the United States to obtain redress from the Government of Venezuela.

House.—The House passed 21 private bills, and an adjournment was about being effected when Kelsey introduced a subject which caused much excitement. He presented it as a question of privilege, ment. He presented it as a question of privilege, first causing it to be read at the Clerk's table—an editorial from the New York Times, of the 6th inst., which charged members of Congress and lobby agents with gross corruption, mentioning the Minnesota land bill in the connection, and saying that evidence can be produced to carry conviction to every honest breast that the criminals should be driven from the high places which they have dishonored.

Mr. Kelsey remarked that the charges contained in this article appeared to have been based on a letter from this city to the Times. Under ordinary ter from this city to the Times. Under ordinary circumstances, it would perhaps be a waste of time to notice articles of this character appearing in the newspapers, but the editor of the Times occupied a position before the country which entitled his statements to credit. If he is in possession of the facts he these in charges, he should substantiate them before a committee of the House, that members who may be guilty of such conduct should be known to the be guilty of such conduct should be known to the country. As the case now stood, he (Kelsey) could neither vote for or against a certain proposition without bringing herself directly under the charges in that article. If there exists such a combination as is alieged, he wanted to know it, and have the facts

I shall mention no member by name. [Voice—"You ought to do it."] It was with feelings of indignation I heard the proposition. [Impatient demands of "What was it?" "Tell it."] The reason why I did not announce it to the House was, that pending the organization of this body a member rose in his place and stated that a fellow member had directly made the attempt to tamper with him for his vote for Speaker. The only credit he received was being laughed at, and it was charged that he did not accept the proffered bribe because there was no such profitable place to be had. I say distinctly that there is not a want of truth in the allegation contained in the Times article. A distinct proposition was made to me by a member of this House in regard to the Minneaota Land bill, and that fifteen hundred dollars would be given in consideration of a vote for that bill. I desire to do so calmly and kindly, but I do not choose to pass silently over such an attempt to injure me before this community. In the first piace, I have not given any contract to finish the plastering of the Masonic Temple by a given date; nor could I have done so had the contract been made, because of numberless delays or disappointments to other mechanics, whose delays are caused in a measure by the want of materials upon the completion of whose work mine depended. I did propose to take a certain amount in cash. They have paid me more than my proposition, but they did so atter deducting from that excess one per cent, per month for interest. In return for this favor on their part, they have also allowed some of their notes, given to me under my proposition, to go to protest. Reports have been circulated among working men to my injury, so that I had great difficulty in obtaining the number of men requisite to enable me to do the work according to my proposition. By whom these reports were circulated, or for what purpose, I am at a loss to know. Among the delays to which I was LUTHER WILSON.

SATURDAY EVENING, JAN. 10, 1857.

A naval court martial met at Philadelphia on Tuesday for the trial of Commander James H. Rowan, of the U. S. brig Bainbridge. The charge against him is scandalous conduct tending to the destruction of good morals. The specifications are that he, whilst commanding the U.S. brig Bainbridge, was drunk on board; that he took part in a riot in his cabin on board the brig Bainbridge at sea; that he, while under the influence of intoxicating liquors, without provocation, assailed Passed Assistant Surgeon John Rudestein with abusive and threatening language; that he indulged to such excess in intoxicating drinks as to require medical treatment for mania-a-potu; that he was drunk and riotous at the American Hotel at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; and that he accepted a challenge from Lieut. Charles E. Fleming to fight a duel.

HUNTINGTON AT SING SING .- It is said that in the State prison at Sing Sing Charles B. Huntington, the Wall street forger, has been assigned to the cabinet shop, where he is employed in sawing and

AFRICA-DR. LIVINGSTON IN ENGLAND .- We have already alluded to the return to England of the Rev. Dr. Livingston, the celebrated missionary. He had a public reception in London on the 16th. The Earl of Shaftesbury presided on the occasion, and, in the course of the opening address, he said that Dr. L. had experienced many difficulties and privations. He had been absent seventeen years, and during that period he had been attacked by fever thirty-one times, and had been in peril of his life by the natives no less than seven times. The Doctor himself, in reply to a complimentary resolution, made a highly interesting statement, the concluding portion of which we annex:

Now we speak of "Africa and its burning sands." Now we speak of "Africa and its burning sands."
This is quite true, so far as some parts of it are concerned, and there the population is small. This is the southern and dry country, but when you go beyond 20 deg, you come into a totally different country and among the people of the true negro family and into the great slave market—the country from which we once derived our slaves, and from which the Brayllians and Cuban pow derive their slaves. the Brazillians and Cubans now derive their slaves.

We find that the people in this country are exceedingly kind and civil, but there is a fringe of peoceedingly kind and civil, but there is a tringe of peo-ple round about which has always prevented com-merce from entering into the interior. The negroes are very fond of commerce, and they were delighted at the idea of finding a path towards the sea for their commerce. They are civil to the missionary, and say "that he is a thing not to be killed." (A laugh.) Not because they love the Gospel, for they laugh.) Not because they love the Gospel, for they know nothing about it. Several of those who went with me to London and saw the ships of war were greatly astonished. On their way through some of the villages, some of the people tried to frighten those with me by telling them that the white man would wheedle them on board the ships, fatten them and eat them. (A laugh.) All their suspicions vanished, however, when I took them on board the ships, and the sailors gave them bread and meat, and they talked together in languages which neither understood, and they almost fell down and worshipped me. They believe that the people who are so wise as to make all these things must have a better religion than theirs. We found the country so well watered with rivers in one part, that we were not able to find a wagon path. At the present moment I have not a single note of triumph, when I think of the operations which yet require to be done.

(Hear, hear.)
I know there must be hard work for the future, as there has been for the past. It is not by great meetings such as this, or great excitement, but by hard work, and a constant feeling of the presence of God, and constant working without seeking the ex-pectations fulfilled, that the great work of Chris-tianising the heathen of Africa can be accomplished. (Cheers.) The country which we traversed was, as I have said, well supplied with water, and we had

I have said, well supplied with water, and we had no occasion to carry water for a single day.

(The Reverend gentleman then entered into some minute details respecting the course of the Zambeze and several of its tributary streams, which would require the aid of maps and diagrams to illustrate with accuracy.) The people resident in this district have, he continued, very little disease among them; they have no consumption, nor scrouls, nor hydropholia.

accuracy.) In people resident in this dirict nave, he continued, very little disease among them; they have no consumption, nor scrofula, nor hydrophobia, and very little insanity indeed. They are preserved in very large numbers—I doubt not for same wise purpose of Providence. The women of the tribe are held in high estimation, and it is the women there who divorce the men, and not the men the women, as in this country. (A laugh.)

A son-in-law is always obliged to go into the country to find wood for his mother-in-law—(a laugh)—and this duty often causes a large amount of labor. As we descended from the north, all our goods and provisions were expended before we reached the Makololo country, but the chief of the Bechuanans provided us abundantly with all that we required, and would not let us go until the rainy season commenced. The tribe enjoy very much to tell that they have been to the end of the world. They say that their fathers and the ancients told them that there was no end to the world, but one time they started off, and, having traveled a very long way, there they are the world. started off, and, having traveled a very long way, they at last came to a place where the world said, "there is no more of me—this is my end." (A

To show how honest the people are, and how they respect the missionary, I will tell you that at one time some packages and letters of mine came up time some packages. The Makololos were for me to the river Zambeze. The Makololos were on one side, and another tribe on the other, with whom they were eften quarrelling. Makololos were told that the things were bewitched, and that they must not be touched, and the things were put on an island in the middle of the stream, where they were hutted, and remained secure for twelve months, waiting my return. I should like to see a missiona-ry station in one of the ridges of the Zambeze riv-

ry station in one of the ringes of the Zamoeze reers, and I think it would be very useful there.

In passing to the north there is, I admit, some difficulty; but others of my fellow-laborers in the missionary field, such as Mr. Moffat, who are compelled to sit at home studying the language and translating the Scriptures, have more painful duties to perform, and they are not so pleasantly occupied as I was in sleeping in the open air, beneath the blue vault of heaven. (A laugh.) Some persons think that my course of journeying was a tempting of Providence. I did not think so. I thought it was my duty to try and open up some new path for Christianity. (Cheers.) And those who think that I was tempting Providence I can only call "my weaker brethren."

ILLINOIS-WHAT RAILROADS WILL DO .- We have before us the message of the Governor of Illinois The State is in a most prosperous condition, all brought about by her extensive net of railroads. The State debt in the last four years has been reduced from $17,398,985 to $12,834,141, besides paying $2,514,358 interest. The Governor is of opinion that, if the present revenue law is continued, the en tire debt will be liquidated within seven years. While the debt of the State is being rapidly extinguished, the revenue is increasing:

There cannot be a doubt now entertained that this unusual prosperity is the result, in a very great measure, of that liberal spirit exhibited by the State towards the internal improvements so necessary to her full development, Actuated by a wise and prudent economy, the State promptly transferred to the Central Railroad Company a grant of land of over two millions and a half of acres, contracting for payment into the State treasury of seven per cent of the gross praceeds of the road for all time to come. The visidom of the act is seen in her already populated pracines and flourishing cities where, four years ago, there was little but a wilderness.

The State treasury is already beginning to feel its benefits by the increase of taxable property, and by the payment into the treasury by the company.

When the whole lines shall have been completed, and by the terms of the charter the State is entitled to 7 per cent., we may safely expect it to pay into the State Treasury at least $200,000 the first year, the second year $250,000, and in five years after its completion it may be confidently re-lied on for $350,000 annually. The amount received so far from the Central Railroad is only 5 per cent. upon the gross proceeds of the earnings of the main trunk for eight-een months.

from the Central Railroad is only 5 per cent. upon the gross proceeds of the earnings of the main trunk for eighteen months.

The limits of this communication will not permit me to refer to the other important railroads of the State, even by name. Four years ago there were less than 400 miles constructed. Th: amount now in operation will vary little from 3,000 miles, penetrating almost every section and filing the country with activity and business. Most of the contemplated roads are in rapid progress of construction as as a citizen of the State, I look upon her condition with unmingled pride and satisfaction. In a few short years she has risen almost Phenix-like from a state of hopeless despondency to a most envisible position. In less than seven years she will be entirely free from debt. Her expenses will be paid without a dollar of taxes from her people, and she will have a large surplus revenue at her disposal. A brighter destiny, it seems to me, can hardly be the lot of any State.

Of the Managers of the American Bible Society to us Auxiliaries, Members, and Friends in regard to a General Supply of the United States with the Sucred

Messrs. Editors: By giving the following Address a place in your widely circulated paper you will render important aid to this great national movement, and undoubtedly gratify every patriotic and Christian reader of the Journal.

and Christian reader of the Journal.

As this city has recently been thoroughly canvassed and supplied, the Louisville and vicinity Bible Society have determined to "bear their part in this good work by sending Bible colporteurs to the more remote and destitute portions of the State."

H. W. PIERSON,

Annual M. Bible Society

Agent Am. Bible Society Louisville, Ky., January, 1857.

At the last anniversary of the American Bible Society, held in New York on the 8th of May, 1866, the following resolution was unanimously adopted by the numerous body of membors present:

In view of the statements made by the managers in their report, and with the cooperation of those who view the Bible as indispensable to our civil and religious welfare, this society now resolves, in humble reliance on Divine aid, to enter on a second exploration of our entire country, with the purpose of placing a copy of this sacred volume, as early as practicable, in every destitute household where there is a willingness to receive it.

The following address and resolutions are now sent forth by the Board of Managers, in order to aid the Society in carrying out its noble purpose. May we not hope that they will receive a general and careful perusal, and that they will receive a general and careful perusal, and that they auxiliaries, as far as possible, will take action of some sort in regard to them, and report the same to us?

Twenty-seven years ago the American Bible Society adopted a similar resolution. On motion of the Rev. Dr. Lyman Beecher, it was in the United States with the Holy Scriptures, that may be willing to purchase or receive them within the space of two years.

By the blessing of God, in the course of that time, every accessible family in the more settled portions of our country was visited and supplied with the Bible—a noble determination vigorously executed. At intervals since that period, various localities have in the same manner been explored and supplied; but during the past twenty-five years no systematic and united effort has been made to place this Book within every person's reach, while occasional exertions of our auxiliary societies in limited fields indicate a general and increasing want, and an absolute nocessity of the measure now proposed.

In 1823-230 our population was 12,866,000; it is now 26,500,000. Our inhabited territory has increased in equal proportion. Arkansas, Michigan, Florida, Texas, Iowa, Wisconsin, and California have been added as States. Territorial governments have been formed in Munesots, Nebraska, Kansas, New Mexico, Utah, Oregon, and Washington. The necessity fer forming such governments shows that a territory of more than two millien square miles has been occupied by our increasing population since 1830—a territory twice the size of that country, over which the charities of the American Bible Seciety were expanded in passing the resolution to which we have referred. In the same period the influx of foreigners has increased from the rate of 23,000 to that of 350,000 in a year; and, atthough now apparently diminishing, has added to our population, during twenty-six years, more than 3,500,000; a large pronow apparently diminishing, has added to our popularing twenty-six years, more than 3,500,000; a large portion of these neither bring the Bible with them, portion of these neither bring the black with a pire love its truths.

The scheme is large and therefore worthy of the American Bible Society. Divine Providence proposes small ends to small abilities; but when He raises up a greatinstitution, gives it a large hold upon the hearts of his people, endows it with great resources, and endues it with a spirit of benevolence, it is that He may accomplish by it great results. We should not act worthily of our position, did we not attempt some great thing for the glory of God and the welfare of our country.

nevolence, it is that He may accomplish by it great results. We should not act worthily of our position, did we not attempt some great thing for the giory of God and the welfare of our country.

The occasion is opportune. Under God our means are adequate. Contrast our shility with that which undertook the former general distribution of the Scripture, and you will be convinced that we now advance to no helpless undertaking. In 1829, the American Bible Society employed only seven traveling agents, and had only seven hundred auxiliaries whereas, in 1856, we number thirty-five agents, and nearly three thousand auxiliaries organized in every portion of the field. In 1829, the American Bible Society had been able to accumulate only 350,000 volumes to meet the exigency, and the whole capacity of its presses and bindery was only 300,000 volumes per annum. In 1856, the Society reports the number of volumes prepared for circulation during the past year more than three times this number; with the sheets on hand, in the course of a few weeks, 200,000 volumes could be thrown into circulation; and the capacity of its presses and bindery is not limited even by one and a half million per annum. The Board of Managers feel that God has brought the Society to this eminent position of ability, for the great purpose which His Spirithan now revealed, in actuating them and you to undertake this proposed thorough exploration and supply of our whole country. His gracious bleesing, continually vouchasfed, encourages the effort. The present Annual Report records facts of unequal interest and animation. By every evidence of the good hand of our God upon us, we are bidden out to new efforts of Christian philanthropy.

Nor are motives wanting. We find a motive in the present social and political stability, are to be found in the principles of the Divine Word. Let us disseminate this charter of our free institutions. Let God's Book teach men not to use their liberty for a cloak of misicaniess, but in love to serve one another; and that then

A PAINFUL HISTORY .- The Buffale Express of this morning says: "We have received the follow-ing communication. Some one should attend to the interment of the deceased:

BUFFALO, January 5, 1857.

Buffalo, January 6, 1857.

Editor of the Express—Sir. A poor woman living on Chicago street, second door from Exchangestreet, upstaira, was delivered of a still-born child, a week ago last night, and the mother died on Saturday night. They were both unburied at noon to-day, and, as the husband has just been discharged from the workhouse for beating his wife previous to her sickness, it ought to be looked into. The house is next to Peter Cook's grocery.

Accident has made us familiar with the details of this case. The poor woman gave birth to a child on a cold freezing night, in a garret which could not be warmed except from an adjoining room, through the broken windows of which the snow was drifting. The husband was drunk and brutally cross, and a little boy of eight years was the only helper of this little boy of eight years was the only helper of this poor woman in her hour of need. Medical attendance—that, thank God, is never wanting in the lowliest hovel—was at hand; and, called together by the unusual emergencies of the case, four physicians had without the remotest prospect of reward.

ened with punishment if he did not act kindly, the ants of the little children and the m immediate wants of the little children and the mother provided for, and the case was left under the watchful care of one of their number. It was as hard a sight as human eye ever witnessed to see a beautiful little girl of three years making her breakfast that morning on a single hard crust of bread, dry and mouldy. Yet, in all the innocent gaiety of infancy, she prattled on as happily at her miserable meal as would the best-nurtured child of wealth in all this great city. all this great city.

This was on Monday morning of last week. On

This was on Monday morning of last week. On Tuesday afternoon she was again visited by one of the consulting physicians, accompanied by his wife, bearing some necessaries of life and little delicacies of sickness together with a little money contributed by an editer who had heard of the case. The husband was again drunk, the wife showing the early symptoms of a fatal disease, the room, the bed untouched in all this time by any friendly hand. A rebuke was administered to the husband, which broke even his stubborn nature, and he promhand. A rebuke was administered to the husband, which broke even his stubborn nature, and he promised with tears to do his duty in the future.

Again on Thursday, still the same condition. The husband was sober and penitent, but where were those cares which only woman can bestow? And so in cold and misery, in her intended bed, this woman, not without refinement in her manner, and evidently one who had seen better days, struggled with death, unwilling to depart and leave her three little ones to the tender mercies of a drunken step-father. But early en Sunday morning she died, uncheered by the kindly offices of any one save that faithful attending physician who had so carefully watched her during that long week, and provided her, not only with medicines, but out of his ewn poverty with food fit for sickness.

THE U. S. STORESHIP SUPPLY IN A HURRICANE-The Camels all Safe.-From Malta, we learn that the U. S. storeship Supply, Capt. David D. Porter, was obliged to stop at that island, on account of a terrible storm which occurred on the 30th November. An officer on board, writing home, says:

December 1, harbor of Malta, 4 P. M. At 10 o'clock last night, when about sixty miles from shore, a squall struck us, and I think I never heard anything like the howling and shrieking of the wind. The ship quivered all over; I could feel the masts bending. The helm was put up and we drove

The hurricane subsided in about half an hour to a decent gale, and as the wind was ahead to go our course, we put back at once for Malta, where we have just arrived. We did not part a sheet of cannave just arrived. We did not part a sneet of canvas, nor was a rope carried away; and of the fortyfour eamels which were purchased in Smyrna by Mr. Heap not one received the least injury.

There is now no doubt that camels can be safely transported to the United States, and that they are transported to the United States, and that they are most useful animals no one can dispute. They can bear extremes of heat and cold, are long-lived, and are economical as regards food. Those on board the Supply are fine specimens, selected with care; one is an exormous fellow, a Bactrian, and weighs from 1,800 to 2,000 pounds. During a storm, the camels are strapped down on their knees, in which position they have had to remain as long as seven days. When released from their fastenings, they rise with alactity and seem none the worse for it. we sail to-day (December 6) homeward bound, the weather having been so boisterous as to delay the departure of the mails. All on board in good health

FAILURE IN NEW YORK .- The Journal of Commerce savs in its money article:

We regret to announce that the firm of Kelly Townsend, & Co., a respectable house engaged in the banking and stock business, have made an as-signment, finding it impossible to make good their contracts. They lost largely by an important contemplated public improvement, the successful issue of which has been unexpectedly delayed, and are somewhat short in stocks. The principal creditors are western correspondents and depositors. We are assured that this suspension will not affect the bank for which they were agents and in which they were restricts. partners.

The steamer to-day took out $252,740 in specie.

Mines on Fire .- A fortnight since, the Peach Mines on Fire.—A fortnight since, the Feach Mountain vein, up the Norwegian, worked by Rogers, Sindrikson, & Co., and the property of the Delaware Coal Company, was fired at the air-shaft, below water level. The vein, from the start, burned so fiercely that all attempts to check the flames proved fruitless, and the lessees occupied themselves in removing the machinery, &c., of the operation. It is thought the fire is the work of some miner, dissatisfied with the reduction of wages, which it is the rule to establish at this season. By the act the the rule to establish at this season. By the act the incendiary has stopped one of the most valuable red ash collieries in the region, has entailed, possibly, considerable loss on the lessees, and thrown out of employment many miners, upon whom, at this severe season, are dependent scores of women and children. It is contemplated to turn a portion of the Norwegian creek into the mine, and thus, if possible, extinguish the fire. The lessees have another operation on the Diamond vein, and are opening two other veins on the same property. The Mt. Laffe colliery—Charles Miller's—took fire last May, and has been burning since, below water level. The fire originated in the old workings. The operation was closed, and water let in. Last week, we understand, the mine was filled up, and ere this the fire has been undoubtedly extinguished. fire has been undoubtedly extinguished.

RATHER FAST.—A "fast" young man, who has for some time been a resident of this city, a day or two since took a young lady of his acquaintance out on a short sleigh ride. On the way out, the young man fell desperately in love with his fair companion, "popped the question," and was immediately accepted. On arriving at a small town, they repaired to a magistrate, and the "twain were made one." After nightfall they returned to the city, and on the following day, after enjoying the bliss of wedded existence for a brief period, the "fast" of wedded existence for a orier period, the "last young man became sick of his bargain and left, ostensibly for New Orleans. Previous to his departure, he told some of his friends that he was married the day previous, while under the influence of liquor, and that he should not abide by it. Later in the day, the deserted wife was about town in search of her trusnt lord, but he was nowhere to be search of her trush tord, but he was however to be found. We believe the girl is a servant, or seam-stress, in some private family, without friends in the city; while the young man's parents and connections belong to the higher walks of life.

Accidents to Express Messengers. - The Centra Railroad Company since paying the heavy bill of damages to Mr. Giffing, the Express messenger so severely injured last winter, have exacted an agreement from American Express Company requiring them to stand between their agents and the Railroad in all future accidents.

The Express Company now wish to make the same contracts with their employees, but the messengers do not like to be smashed up at their own expense, and refuse to sign the contracts. Several resignations are said to have resulted.

BUSINESS MEN OF LOUISVILLE LOOK AT THIS! TIME IS MONEY!

DINNERS AT FIVE MINUTES' NOTICE, Between 1 and 5 o'clock P. M!

COLD WEATHER AND FROST BITES. - Tens of thousands of persons suffer annually with rosted limbs, when they could easily be cured by using Porter's Oriental Life Liniment.

Eight hundred bottles of this Liniment were sold at the principal depot in this city on Monday, the 5th of January, nearly every bottle of which was bought especially for the cure of frost-bites. This great demand for the Oriental Life Liniment is in consequence of the universal success which has attended its use in the cure of frost-bites. It is a well-known fact that hundreds of old cases, of from ten to fifteen years' standing, have been permanently cured by the use of this valuable remedy.

Sold wholesale and retail at 96 Third street. Also by all druggists and country merchants throughout jan 7 d&wj&b the Union.

DISSOLUTION .- The copartnership heretofore existng between the undersigned, under the style of Miller & Tabb, has been dissolved by mutual con-

The business will hereafter be continued by G. B. Tabb, at their old place of business, corner of Fourth and Market streets.

FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS .- We would respectfully invite the attention of persons, especially ladies, to our stock of black fancy Silks, Exproidered Crape Robes, Illusion Robes for evening, Plaid Cashmere, D'Laines, Merinos, Velvet and Cloth Cloaks, Shawls, Embroideries and Lace Goods, a large stock, which we are offering very low. We have a large stock of Welsh, Ballardvale, and Shaker Flannel, Linen Table Damasks, Napkins, Towels, Irish Linens, bleached Sheetings, bleached Cottons, best brands, which we are offering as low as they can be found in this or any other Western market.

G. B. TABB, Corner Fourth and Market sts.

DISCOURSES TO THE PROFESSIONAL STUDENTS AND YOUNG MEN OF LOUISVILLE .- The second of the series of discourses commending the practical value and importance of Christianity as the sure guide and great safeguard of life, will be delivered by the pastor of the Walnut street Baptist Church, corner of Fonrth and Walnut streets, to-morrow night, at 7 o'clock. Seats free. All are invited; especially those who have thought lightly of Christianity and its institutions.

Subject: The Bible and the Lord's Day.

LAST NIGHT OF THE RUSSIAN WAR - MOZART HALL.-This wonderful exhibition will positively close this evening. We have never witnessed any-thing to equal this. Every scene is produced in such a surprising but pleasing manner that the attention of all is riveted to them from the commencement to the close. The rapidity of the changes, the vast amount of matter presented, and the wonderful ingenuity shown in their production make all who have visited this exhibition pronounce it as the greatest combination of the sublime and beautiful with the highly ingenious they have ever witnessed. It is to be hoped that none will allow this last opportunity to pass without taking advantage of it. There is an exhibition this afternoon 22 o'clock, when children will be admitted for a dime. They can learn here more of history in one hour than in a twelvemonth's reading.

RELIGIOUS NOTICE.-Rev. T. M. Drain will preach at the East Baptist Church to-morrow at 11 o'clock, and Rev. S. H. Ford at night. There is quite an interesting meeting going on in this church.

LIBERTY AND UNION .- The members of these Councils and all true and loyal Americans are requested to attend a social and business meeting this evening at Odd Fellows' Hall at 7 o'clock. N. B. James Buchanan will be present and address the assembly. SKATES! SKATES! just received by express at No. 69 Third street. j3 i&b A. McBRIDE.

Snow commenced falling in this city about midnight Friday, and to-day at noon was coming From St. George's Hall, London, acknowledged by all the press to be the best, largest, and most complete Exhibition ever shown in the United States exhibited in New York, Cincinnati, New Orleans, Montreal, Quebec, and Toronto down briskly in great white flakes.

CONCERT FOR THE ORPHANS .- The concert for the benefit of the Orphans' Home advertised for Open every evening at 7. Curtain rises at 7% o'clock. Admission 50 cents. Children half price. Thursday night next will take place on Wednesday evening, at Mozart Hall. The object is a noble one, and appeals to the sympathies and philanthropic impulses of every citizen. A number of benevolent persons have established this institution in the vicinity of the city, and already it has accomplished much good. Every one should feel an interest in its being sustained, and we trust that this effort in its behalf about to be made will demonstrate that Louisville is full of warm-hearted people, eager to assist an enterprise of so much worth.

The most celebrated and able musical artists in the city will assist in the concert, so that it will be a genuine treat. The price of tickets has been placed at fifty cents, which is a great reduction from the usual charge on such eccasions. That alone should induce the attendance of a large number.

The vote upon the Court House question is progressing quietly. But little interest appears to be manifested. We suppose that there will be an almost unanimous popular verdict against the appropriation of $200,000 for a new building, or repairs to the old one.

We received by Adams' Express, about two e'cleck to-day, a large bundle of papers, containing St. Louis dates of yesterday evening, Memphis, Natchez, and Little Rock papers. The St. Louis papers of the same date we shall probably receive by mail on Tuesday morning next.

MESSES. EDITORS; The reporter of the Democrat was in error in respect to the proposed meeting at the Merchants' Exchange. The meeting was not called but only discussed, and the postpenement was a matter of policy and not of fuel. The Secretary has no complaint to make of want of patronage from the merchants of the city. The meeting will take place on Friday evening. Reported for the Evening Bulletin.

THIRTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.—SECOND SESSION WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.

The Senate is not in session, having yesterday adjourned till Monday.

House.—The Speaker announced a select committee to investigate the alleged charges of corruption to consist of Messrs. Kelsey, Orr, Davis of Mu., Ritchie, and Warner.

Mr. Grow said he had had for two or three weeks

Mr. Grow said he had had for two or three weeks a petition signed by 1500 voters of Kansas, remonstrating against the right of Mr. Whitfield to a seat as delegate from that Territory. He had been informed that a large number similar to this were on their way, and asked to have read the petition of Mr. Reeder setting forth the reasons for contesting Mr. Whitfield's seat. Objections being made, the papers were referred to the Committee on Elections. Mr. Reeder, in his petition, denies the right of Mr. Whitfield to the seat, and claims it for himself, setting forth the reasons for whis assertion. He are that he and Mr. Whitfield were candidates at two separate elections, when he, Mr. Reeder, received more than double the number of legal votes cast for Mr. Whitfield

Upon a full investigation of all the facts, the House rejected Mr. Whitfield, but refused to admit Mr. Reeder. The reasons for this are set forth in the report of the Kansas investigating committee. Without new legislation, and under the same state of things, Mr. Whitfield became a candidate for the single session of the same Congress at an election held in October last, without authority of law.

Washington, Jan. 9. Official information has been received that the Omcial information has been received that the Shawnee Indians have recently completed their selections of two hundred thousand acres in their reserve, and that consequent thereon an extensive organization has been formed by persons in that vicinity (it is reported from three to eight hundred families), and are preparing to go on that reserve on or before February next and occupy as much of the remainder of the three hundred thousand acres as they may desire.

The treaty prohibits white settlers from occupying these lands until 90 days after the selections are made and approved, and the surplus set apart by the President's proclamation. The commissioner of Indian Affairs, by direction of the President has ordered Col. Cummings, superintendent of Iudian Affairs at St. Louis, to go to the Shawnee Reserve and prevent whites from jumping the Shawnee. Miami.

fairs at St. Louis, to go to the Shawnee Reserve and prevent whites from jumping the Shawnee, Miami, Kaw, half breed, or any other Indian lands said to be worth from $20 to $50 per acre.

Requisitions for troops have been sent by telegraph, to enforce, if necessary, by that means, the government orders.

Mr. Hoogland, from that Territory, likewise is in the city, urging, among other things, an appropriation of $50,000 for the capitol.

Sr. Louis, Jan. 10. The legislature meets in joint session on Monday next for the election of two United States Senators. The legality of Jackson's inauguration as Lieut Governor will be tested as soon as the supreme Capt. Manning, a retired naval officer, residing at Charleston, Va., fell into the fire a few days since and was burned to dcath.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 10. The Washington Union says it has made inquiry as to John Barney's statement that Gen. Cass had received and accepted the appointment of Secretary of State, and is authorized to say that it is entirely without foundation. It also asserts that not one member of the Cabinet has yet been selected.

COMMERCIAL BANK OF KENTUCKY .- Dr. W. Lee White, editor of "White's Counterfeit Detector," has been very much abused in regard to his course toward the Commercial Bank of Kentucky. We take sides with neither party; but transfer to our columns the following vindication from his "Deteccolumns the following vindication from his "Detector."

"East Tennessee Monry. — The fact of the Nashville Banks throwing out the notes of the Bank of East Tennessee has caused a depreciation in the notes of that Bank, and although our Banks are not receiving it at par we neverthelees believe that the Bank is good, and would advise the hadders of the notes not to sacrifice them.

"The following fard from Mesers. Watts, Given, & Co. explains itself. Mr. W. Lee White, of Louisville, Ky., eduror of White's Bank Note Detector, seems to be peculiarly unfortunate in obtaining information relative to Paducah and the business of our citizens. He is the same individual who maliciously attempted to destroy the credit of the 'Commercial Bank of Kentucky,' some time-since."

In reference to the card from Mesers. Watts, Given, & Co., and the Bank of East Tennessee, we are done. The former are gentlemen, and between gentlemen a slight misunderstanding or oversight can easily be adjusted. The Latter we regard as a defunct institution, and among the things that were, consequently, we have no further disposition to speak of it. Our course and position are fully, and, we trust, satisfactorily explained. We have done what we coxecived to have been our duty, and nothing more; and that we intend to do at all hazards, so long as we have a band to write and a head to direct.

But there is another matter to be disposed of. Another enemy, and perhaps a very formidable one, has entered the field of battle, but being well provided with a scalpel sharpened to perfection, and having the knowledge that we posses of its organs and their functions, we intend te dissect and demonstrate until we, at least, are satisfied.

The "Commercial Bank of Kentucky," through its organ as we regard it, the Paducah Democrat, asys we maliciously attempted to destroy its credit some time since. It has not failed, and we trust it will not, but in times like these we deem it our duty to warn our friends of all weak and doubtful institutions, for the very best a the public mind.

Before doing so, however, we propose to quote a parasraph which we published in the October number of the Detector in the same year, in order to show our disposition to uphoid and sustain this bank, as well as to inform the reader where it was first discredited: "It is being circulated in the city of New York, that White's Dutector has discredited the Commercial Bank of Kentucky, which is false. Thompson's (N. Y.) Reportor is guilty of the charge; and, so far as we know, there is no cause whatever for such streatment of the Commercial Bank. Its notes are now, and always have been, received by all the banks in this

and always have been, received by all the banks in this State."

Among the first manifest signs in the city of weakness and declining confidence were, that nearly if not all the private bankers for a number of days swinced in the most same declining confidence were, that nearly if not all the private bankers for a number of days swinced in the most same declining confidence were, that nearly if not all the private bankers for a number of days swinced in the most same decliners of the order of the different same in the city were holding an unusual number of official meetings; and when we learned that they were brought about by the solicitations of Mr. Flournoy, the president, who was in the city, the object was explained. It was to take into consideration the propriety of advancing means in order to sustain and relieve this fast young sister of the embarrasment which must have inevitably destroyed her. Some were in favor of treating her as they all believed and felt she deserved—with contempt—but the majority took the proper and most natural view of the subject; and, rather than endanger not only the credit but the lives of their own institutions by allowing the "Commercial" to go down, they, after placing her under bonds and suitable restrictions, advanced the necessary amount to reinstate her. This action, however, was not taken until after we had discredited the bank. So nearly was confidence destroyed that one of the old banks of issue in this city refined, for one day at least, to receive its notes on deposit. The same thing was done by one or more of the branches in the interior, and its failure was openly predicted by some of the regular bank officers.

In view of the foregoing, the truth of which we stand ready to prove if questioned, we ask, were we not right! Did we not do just what the public demanded we should do? We occupy a peculiar position—that of a sentine!

LOUISVILLE AND PORTLAND RAILROAD.

Massars, Editors: I crawe the use of your columns for a reply to the report of Alderman Shotwell, which appeared in the proceedings of the Board of Aldermen as published in your paper of the 7th. I do so because he uses language in regard to the Louisville and Portland Railroad Company which should not be permitted to go to the public without explanation and correction. Since I am thus compelled to appeal to the public, I shall take the liberty not only of putting the company rectus in curva, but of correcting some of the misstatements of facts with which his report is replate from beginning to end.

Refore entering upon what I propose to do by this communication, I feel it my duty to be just to Alderman Shotwell. He is not, I am confident, the anthor of the report which appears over this signature. He is an honse LOUISVILLE AND PORTLAND RAILROAD.

munication, I feel it my duty to be just to Alderman Shot-wold. He is not, I am confident, the anthor of the report which appears over his signature. He is an honest, ownered, just man, or at least internds so to be, and it is impossible that such a perverted statement could come from him. He has allowed himself, doubtless unwithingly, to be imposed upon. I think I can convince him that this is true, and that, by placing himself at the absolute disposal of another less scrupulous than he is himself, the has allowed himself to be made the apparent author of statements wholly unfounded in facts and grossly unjustic others. I acquit him of all criminality except that (if there be criminality in it) of trusting too implicitly in some one in whom, as I shall allow him, no confidence could be safely reposed.

I think I can accomplish what I propose in the way of it has the company right by simply correcting in the order in which I have said the report abounds.

Alderman Shotwell commences by saying:

Alderman Shotwell commences by saving:

"The Legislature of Kentucky, in 1830, chartered the Lexington and Ohio Railroad Company and provided, in the 24th section of the act, that, if the road should not be finished in ten years, the charter should be 'null and void.' The read never was finished, and consequently the charter was forfeited, and no rights can be claimed under it."

was forfeited, and no rights can be claimed under it.

Now if it is true that no rights can be claimed under it.

now if it is true that no rights can be claimed under it.

the need scarcely have said a single word more. But if it is true, haw does it happen that the State has acquired from said company first the old Lexington and Frankfort Bailroad, which she subsequently subscribed as stock in the present Lexington and Frankfort Railroad Company, valued at §180,800; secondly, the right of way and work done between Louisville and Frankfort which she subsequently for g75,000; thirdly, the Louisville and Portland Railroad, "with all the right of vary, &c., thereto attached," which, after running for some time on her own account, she subsequently granted as a charity to the Asylum for the unfortunate blind?

Mr. S. says the city authorities expressly "reasyred the

unfortunate blind?

Mr. S. says the city authorities expressly "reserved the power to recoke the ordinances granting the right of way."

Will he be pleased to show when and where she reserved it, and when and whereshe exercised it (for he says this she did too). I have been wholly unable to find where either has been done. The resolution granting the right it, and when and who she did too). I have either has been done of way is as follows:

sither has been done. The resolution granting the right of way is as follows:

"At a meeting of the Mayor and Council of the city of Louisville, on Monday, 25th of September, 1837, on motion of Mr. Field, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved by the Mayor and Board of Council of the city of Louisville. That the Lexington and Ohio Railroad Company, in the construction of the railroad from Louisville to Portland, be and the same is hereby authorized and permitted to construct said road from Thirteenth along Main street as far as Sixth street, and are in like manner parmitted to construct said road along either Sixth, Seventia, or Eighth street in their election to the wharf; Provided, hewever, that this permission is granted on the condition that said Company, in the construction of said road along Main street and the cross streets, as herein provided for, shall replace the pavement and remove all rubbish and so locate the same as to prevent any obstruction to the free passage of the water along said streets, or travel therein; and, further, that the cars to be placed on said road, when completed, shall not be propelled by steam in any part of Main street or in the cross streets leading to the wharf. "A copy from the minutes.

"G. J. JOHNSTON, Clerk."

He mays that the Chancellor decided the old road to be

He mays that the Chancellor decided the old road to be "lirreparable nuisance." That opinion "was an able one." Yet the Court of Appeals reversed that opinion. Was their opinion "an able one" too Chancellor Kent has quoted it with approbation. Yet that decision was in regard to a railroad badly constructed and run by steam power. But, if it is an "irreparable nuisance" to run a sue-horse omnibus upon rails, laid even with the streets from Twelfth to Sixth on Main street, what must be the character of the nuisance which, as former President of the Louisville and Frankfort Railroad, he daily sanctioned in running a locomotive and train of cars upon a railroad raised above the level of the streets from near First street for seven or ten squares on Jefferson? How, as Alderman, can he occupy his place, for a single day or night, without proposing an ordinance or resolution revoking the right of way granted to the Frankfort road?

The State, under her title acquired by mortgage and de d, has never claimed any right above Twelfth street, nor did the Institution for the Education of the Blind, to whom the State granted it, ever pretend to claim it. Nor was the right of the city to repeal the grant ever questioned until the persons now controlling the road commenced without leave, with a strong hand, and in contempt of the city authorities, to tear up and destroy the newly bowldered pavement along Main street, to extend their road to Sixth street. They had no such right. Theonly right they did have was derived from the Institution of the Blind, whose only rights were derived from the State. The State had acquired no such right by the purchase, and did not pretend to grant any such to the Blind Institution; nor did the institution pretend to have any such right or attempt to transfer any such right to those gentlemen."

If the State never claimed the right above Twelfth, why did she exercise it, and why did she protest against its invasion? For months she exercised it, and when invaded solemnly protested against it, as the records of the City Council show, through her authorized agent, the Pretion of the Board of Internal Improvements, the late venerable and distinguished Ex-Governor Metcalfe. I have intimated that I did not believe that the pretended right of the City to repeal or revoke the grant was ever exercised but be this as it may, if it was, and the right or pretended right was never questioned, and "the persons now controlling the road commenced without leave, and with a strong hand, and in contempt of the city authorities, to tear up and destroy the newly bowldered pavement, "&c. and if the Blind Institution never pretended to the right of way from Sixth street to Twelfith, nor "attempted to transfer it," why, let Alderman Showell tell me, does the contract between the Blind Institution and manage a railroad, with horse power, from Sixth, on Main, to Thirteenthethethethethethethen on ever pretended to the records of the county over for waining the ways for the county over for summe power, from Sixth, on Main, to Thirteenth street, and thence to Portland, "See? But Mr. S. distinctly states that he has not seen that contract.

Why hasm't he? If he had gone to the records of the county court, or examined the papers in the very case from which he has taken the trouble to procure certain copies, he could not have failed to see it. He had time to examine musty statutes twenty-seven years old. He had time to camine musty statutes twenty-seven years old. He had time to camine musty statutes twenty-seven years old. He had time to get copies of papers in the Louisville Chancery Court; but he had not time to look at a single paper, one of the most important of all in the very case he was examining. The next time he says that gentlemen are attempting to exercise a micrely pretended right, "without leave or license and in contempt of all authority with a larger (?) force," I pray him to have respect enough for himself both as an Alderman and as a man to inform himself somewhat as to what he talks about. Will he allow me to ask him who told him or-where he learned that "the Blind Institution never claimed any such right or intended to transfer it to others?" His informant is either inexcussibly ignorant or has made a willful misstatement. Again Alderman Shotwell says:

"In 1844 the Legislature incorporated the Lonisville and Portland Railroad Company," for the purpose of raising funds for the education of the Blind, and subscribed as stock in said Comyany the railroad then constructed in the city of Louisville and between the city and Portland. The road then existing was all she attempted to convey."

Was it all she attempted to convey, Alderman Shotwell? What does the act say?

Was it all she attempted to convey, Alderman Shotwell? What does the act say?

"Sec. 4. That the State of Kentucky hereby subscribes, for and on behalf of the State, the railroad now constructed in the city and between the city of Louisville and Portland."

But does it stop here? Not so. It proceeds;

But does it stop here? Not so. It proceeds:

—"and hereby vests in said corporation when chosen the title which the Commonwealth has in and to the right of vany, "&c., &c., "belonging to or attached to said railroad to which the Commonwealth has in any manner the right of title in law or equity."

The State of Kentucky bought the entire Lexington and Ohio railroad, embracing the portion between Sixth street and Portland. To this latter portion was attached the right of way between these two points. When did she lose that portion between these two points. When did she lose that portion between these two points, when did she lose that portion between these two points, when did she lose that the state of the state been several grants by the City Council of rights of way to this road, some of which way was occupied and some not, and the purpose of the State was to include it all in the grant.

As to Alderman Shotwell's statement that "there is now no incorporated company called the Louisville and Portland Rairoad Company." I have only to say that the Legislature has recognized it and that the Alderman has rendered himself simply ridieulous by making the assertion.

But it is needless to expose further the mistakes (not to use a harsher word) made in this report. It is full of them—full of them from beginning to end.

I desire to say a word or two more however, Mesars. Editors, before closing this communication. Is the Portland Railroad worthy to be encouraged or should it be discountenanced and abandoned? A large amount has been expended in the enterprise upon the faith of what the company were advised were vested rights. Should all this be sacrificed? Those who have been using the conveniences it offers can say whether, prior to its construction, any such accommodations as it affords were ever enjoyed. An average of 1,200 or 1,500 people per early such accommodations as it affords were ever enjoyed. An average of 1,200 or 1,500 people per termini were given it, to save the merchants of Louisville $50,000 or $75,000 per anum (from 40 to 75 cents per ton or dray lond) in: the matter of their appreciation of it. Its managers are doing all they can to make it as serviceable to the public as possible. They have offered, if proper termini were given it, to save the merchants of Louisville $50,000 or $75,000 per anum (from 40 to 75 cents per ton or dray lond) in: the matter of their drayage alone between Louisville and Portland. They are daily saving travelers who pass through our city from the enormous exaction that hackmeti impose whenever the opportunity offers. Whatever they can they are anxious to do for the public, and thus far, have done to the extent of their ability. Should they be eccuraged or should they be frowned d

MR. DENISON'S SPEECH BEFORE THE BIBLE SOCIETY.

When the Apostle Paul stood in the presence of When the Apostle Paul stood in the presence of Nero, in the city of Rome, the two contending prin-ciples for the government, happiness, and comfort of the human race stood in the presence of each other. The whole of the Roman world was divided between Nero-olatry and the worship of Christ. The Greek philosophy was virtually dead, for Plato, Socrates, and Ariettle were executive, no more industrial there. and Aristotle were exerting no more influence amon men than if they never had been born. The wrat glings of the Stoics and Epicureans were the sole representatives of that bright but unsatisfying inrepresentatives of that bright but unsatisfying in-tellection that had towered to its utmost height in the genius of Socrates, Plato, and Aristotle. Men everywhere felt, what Cicero despairingly uttered, that a something was needed to remove the taint from the human soul. And if he, in full possession of the treasures of Greek literature and at the head of the Roman mind, felt this, what must have been the consciousness of those who had not a tythe of the consolations, the blessings, and the joys which literature and science bestow upon the well stored mind? But even these lights had burned out when Paul arrived at Rome; darkness and despair had seized the mind of almost universal humanity wickedness. mind of almost universal humanity, wickedness reigned supreme, and, amidst the flickering phan-toms of the present, the benumbed faculties of men bowed in worship to him, who was the distributor of the honors and wealth of the world, and that man

Mr. Stanley describes the world as having a worn Mr. Stanley describes the world as having a wornout creed which recked with superstition; a wornout philosophy that contained scarcely a germ of truth; and a worn-out character that was made up of all the vices of the Greeks without a trace of their virtues. In the limited horizon of such their virtues. In the limited horizon of such minds, Nero's power seemed to be an eternal fixture, and all hopes of happiness were centered in winning his favor. This was the appalling condition of humanity pictured in all its fullness at Rome, in which there was not one vitalising element, not one incentive to noble actions, not one inducement to goodness, that goodness which Socrates declared was "the sublimest of all intellectual conceptions," and of which he added, "if we were wholly ignorant of it, then, though we possessed all other knowledge in the highest degree, it would, without this, profit us nothing." In the midst of this state of things, Paul arrived at Rome in chains. He held in his commission the power that was able to breathe in his commission the power that was able to breath upon this valley of dry bones and endow them with a fairer, purer, better life than had ever been upon this valley of dry bones and endow them with a fairer, purer, better life than had ever been known before. He had in his possession a truth that was able to renovate humanity and elevate it to heights of power, joy, and happiness that earth had not known since the fall of man. That great truth was and is, that a crucified man in Judea had risen from the tomb and had been exalted above all principalities and powers, and that God had ordained that in him and in him alone could remission of sins be obtained.

Spirit are unity, love, joy, peace, goodness, and purity and all things that are faithful and honorable. As the prisoner Paul, chained day and night to one of Nero's soldiers, proclaimed these sublime truths, they seized the attention of men, they began to permeate society, the gathering stream rolled onward widening and deepening its channels. A new life was given to men; they were lifted above fear or reproach or suffering. A mystic tie bound myriads of human beings together, and for the first time in the history of the earth it was discovered that they could be one in obedience, truthfulness, fidelity, one in mind and disposition, all obeying one law. Fidelity, truth, and righteousness began to grow amidst the rank and prolific wickedness of Rome. A belief of one fact, "that Jesus was the Christ the son of the living God," swallowed up all earthly thoughts, and men rejoiced to learn everything that belonged to that fact, that they might plant it in their hearts, interweave it in all their thoughts, express it in all their feelings, and live it in all things. Justice, faithfulness, truth, righteousness, goodness, an abhorrence of all wrong, were the predominant traits of this renovated people. The oneness of this people carried these renovating principles everywhere triumphant. They became impressed upon society; institutions began to grow upon them; the laws and usages of nations were based upon these vitalizing powers. Wherever the people thus regenerated were to be seen, all men had assurance that there could be found men that were all truth, holiness, and goodness. They died by hundreds of thousands rather than deviate a had assurance that there could be found men that were all truth, holiness, and goodness. They died by hundreds of thousands rather than deviate a hair's breadth from the path of rectitude, that path of rectitude marked out by the Spirit of God. They would have died at the stake before they would have uttered a slander or a calumny upon anything what-uttered a slander or a calumny upon anything whatever.

These were the redeeming influences that lifted men from that deplorable state of things that Christianity came to cure. Wherever the possessors of that influence met, whether in tens or ten thousands, every one on earth was safe from wrong, from misrepresentation, from slander at their hands. The tallest one among them would not have ventured to do wrong to anything on earth, under the hope that he would receive such sympathy or support from any one member of the body as denominational religionists bestow upon their poor heroes. If Paul had attended a Bible meeting in Rome, and had been told that there was a mutilated copy of one of his letters in common use, but that a number of persons letters in common use, but that a number of persons who were obedient to Jesus Christ in all things, who believed that they had to give an account to God for each word that they uttered and each act that for each word that they uttered and each act that they performed, were engaged at great expense in hunting up the most perfect copies of the original letter, in order to correct the mutilated copy, does any one who knows anything of his character suppose that he would have been guilty of the wickedness, sarrighteousness, the studied misrepresentation, the defiberate perversions, the unprovoked insults, that characterized Mr. Denison in his entire speech at the First Presbyterian church? One of the last occasions for such crimes, one would suppose, would occasions for such crimes, one would suppose, would be a Bible meeting, for reflecting minds may well ask, why distribute the Bible among the destitute if those who have the Book do not know how to behave themselves truthfully, honestly, fairly, right-eously? The history of the past infallibly shows that to the Bible the world of men are now indebted for all they know of justice, propriety, truth, and honesty, and if we may not look for the exhibition of these graces of the human character among those who profess to be guided by that Book, where may any one hope to find them?

On the night that the Saviour was betrayed to his

on the night that the Saviour was betrayed to his enemies by the trickery of false pretences, he asked—"are ye come out as against a thief?" and the advecates of a revision of the Bible may well ask Mr. Denison the same question. What have they done, or what are they attempting to do, that should not command the warm approval of every honest man on earth? The whole basis of our enterprise and conduct may be fully and truly given in on earth? The whole basis of our enterprise and conduct may be fully and truly given in a very narrow space, and we challenge denial of what we now say. First: there is not one scholar, of character as such, that pretends that the Greek text of the New Testament is a faulful copy of what the Holy Spirit directed the Apostles to write. Second: there is not one scholar who does not admit that the world of learning he work it to reserve in motion. not one schoolar who does not damit that the world of learning has now in its possession ample means to make a near approach to a perfect rescript of the pure text. Third: there is not a scholar who says now, nor has there ever been one who said, that the English race has now, or that it ever had, a revision that is a faithful expression in all things, even of the defective Greek text. Fourth: there is not a critical scholar, who has ever conversed arm substituted weathers. Fourth: there is not a critical scholar, who has ever compared our authorized version with the original text, who thus not been made to feel in every step of his examination the deplorable condition of the English version. Every party in Christendom, through its scholars, have declared these facts as incontrovertible. Fifth: the only organization that has ever available. Fifth: the only organization that has ever available to these truths, and that has attempted honestly, faith fully, and in the fear of God to respond to these acknowledged evils and to remove them through the scholarship of the world is the American Bible Union and its kindred associations. Now we ask truthful honest minds, who love truth for its own sake, what can there be in these efforts to excite the malice, malevolence, and bitter denunciacite the malice, malevolence, and bitter denuncia-tions that Mr. Denison lavished upon the cause and upon the friends of revision? He acknowledges that King James's version is not a faithful version of the word of God, in all its fullness. What reason can be give to God or man why it should not be faithful? He says that sects are engaged in this work, and they are not the sects that he prefers. He has no ection to the work being don be can select the partyism to do it, and that party-ism is either the Church of England or the Scotch Church. He would infinitely rather put this all important and responsible trust in the hands of sectarians of his own choosing than to trust it to great scholars bound to the performance of their labor by the obligation to be faithful to God and man, and faithful to the laws of philology. He would much rather have a theological Bible to suit his notions, than a philological Bible that faithfully reflects the mind of the spirit of the living

Mr. Denison willfully shuts his eyes to the fact that, though sects are engaged in the Revision, they have carefully excluded all partyism from the Constitution and rules of proceeding. It is not the sects that are guiding the Revision movement, but the unsectarian Constitution and laws of the Bible Union, and that they are unsectarian is evident to all men, for neither Mr. Denison nor any other man has ever attacked that Constitution nor any one of those laws. The very fact that sects, "widely differing in opinions" as Mr. Denison alleges, have found a com-mon platform of fidelity to God and man, in the Constitution and laws of the Bible Union whereon all honest men can stand, would open his eyes to healthful light, if they were not impervious to truth. The Catholicity of the Revision cause is in the Constitution and laws of the organization, but Mr. Den-ison, with that clumsy logic whose ungainly gaits ever show themselves in all his attempts at reasoning, fastens upon the men who are bound by that Constitution and those laws, and builds his distempered fancies on the wrong foundation. After all he has seen on this subject, this is willful perversion that is determined not to do right; that is resolved to defy truth, reason, uprightness, and justice.

We have already exposed Mr. Denison's utter unfaithfulness in all the statements he made about the faithfulness in all the statements he made about the Bible Union and the Revision Association, as far as we have commented upon them. He cannot sustain any one of them by even a shadow of evidence, and he feels that silence is now his only refuge. We now turn to another of his statements, which shows his incapacity for accuracy, and that his favorite aversions are fairness and propriety. But before doing this we must settle his revision and punctuation of the 9th chapter and 5th verse of Romans, to which we referred in our second notice of Mr. Denison. He declared "the Greek as it stands is confirmed by all the manuscripts, all the ancient versions. which we learned "the Greek as it stands is confirmed by all the manuscripts, all the ancient versions, and by nearly all the fathers." In plain terms, "as it stands" means that the pauses in the manuscripts and versions and in the works of the fathers justified Mr. Denison's punctuation. There is not the shade even of authority for the statement. Neither the manuscripts nor ancient versions nor the fathers give any countenance to Mr. Denison's punctuation. All the authorities concur in affirming the accuracy of the nunctuation of the verse just as it stands in of the punctuation of the verse just as it stands in the authorised version. Tregelles, the highest living authority, says: "The passage has been habitually connected as we have it." He continues: "The be obtained.

As proof of these facts the gifts of the Holy Spirithad been imparted to men for various purposes, but conspicuously to bring to the mind of the Apostles all the words that Jesus had taught, and to guide them into expressions that exactly taught what God demanded of men. The fruits of that missible; the only connection of the words which will bear the test of criticism is that commonly received," a connection which Mr. Denison attempted to pervert to his own purposes, and he coolly claimed the ancient manuscripts, early versions, and most of the fathers as sustaining him! Verily, an eagle has not come from this duck egg, but birds quite as strange will pip the shell before we are done with Mr. Denison's broodings over Greek and classic literature. His calumnies and jibes respecting "the little concern on the corner of Fourth and Walnut" call upon us to measure his pretentious claims to learning, and we shall meet his call.

We now take up another of his statements made at the meeting of the Louisville and Vicinity Bible Society, respecting the conduct of the friends of Revision. Thus far we have found that speech one unbroken tissue of disgraceful misrepresentation, and Mr. Denison himself shall now contradict one of his miserable inventions. He undertook to create the impression that the friends of Revision were imposters engaged in a stupendous scheme of deceiving the public. In order to make us out a gang of swindlers, he gave his audience to understand that we had carefully avoided the publication of any revision of a book containing the word baptise. He said we had given the public the book of Job, an old Hebrew poem upon which there was likely to be but little controversy. This was "the train of thought" Mr. Denison wished to fasten upon his audience. Now let the reader look at Mr. Denison's own contradiction of this statement. In the "Discussion," in which Mr. Denison s name figured in the first article that enjoyed the honor of his signature, he anlet the reader look at Mr. Demison's own contradiction of this statement. In the "Discussion," in which Mr. Denison's name figured in the first article that enjoyed the honor of his signature, he announced that the Bible Union had published "a revision of the 2d Epistle of Peter, the Epistles of John and Jude, and the Book of Revelations." This revision was published two years in advance of Job, and the 19th chapter and 13th verse of Revelations contain the very word, bapto, which Mr. Denison says we have shunned before the public. That calumny is therefore settled by Mr. Denison himself. But other facts bear upon this poor slander. The earliest revised publication undertaken by the Bible Union was the gospel by Matthew. Two chapters of it were furnished by the reviser, and the publication was commenced. But the Bible Union never received another chapter, and then only one more, from the reviser until the book of Job was commenced in the Monthly Reporter, consequently, no more of it could be published. Thus Mr. Denison is doubly condemned as a calumnistor of his fellow-citizens. w-citizens.

The statement which he repeated in his respecting the reasons why the Baptists left the American and Foreign Bible Society, we nailed to the counter, in the discussion, se effectually that he never undertook to defend himself. The calumny is too low in its character to need any further refuta tion from us.

This reverend teacher of morality undertook to This reverend teacher of morality undertook to make his audience believe that some man, in trying to send twenty dollars into the treasury of the American Bible Society, had paid it to an agent of the Revision Association, and that the money had gone into our treasury. As Mr. Denison has fathered this paltry slander, we shall notice it so far as to say that we do not believe there is the least foundation for the statement. The obvious redress would be to present the case to the officers of the Association, with evidence of its truth. But nothing of the kind has ever been done, and, in order to show that Mr. Denison does not himself believe the statement that he uttered, we are authorised to say, that, whenever he uttered, we are authorised to say, that, whenever he acts like an honorable and just man by bringing evidence that proves his statement before the assistant corresponding secretary of the Association, the money shall be refunded, with interest from the date of its receipt by the Association. Now let him money shall be retunded, with interest from the date of its receipt by the Association. Now let him prove his faith by his works, or stand condemned by all honorable and upright men. It was his place to do this at the outset, and his failure to do it sets the seal of sin upon him, even if he could now prove his case.

Mr. Denison's next leap was at Canon Selwyn, of the English Church, and that gentleman was denounced as a Socinian! Abuse and detraction are Mr. Denison's universal resort whenever argument fails him, and that is a frequent occurrence. There is no more reason to suppose Canon Selwyn a Socinian than that Mr. Denison is one. Of what use cinian than that Mr. Denison is one. Of what use are the thirty-nine articles, if they cannot keep Socinianism out of the Church? They are no better than the Bible, if they cannot do that.

But we must close for te-day, and leave the remainder of Mr. Denison's rigmarole for another week.

An Attempt on Uncle Sam's Money Chests.—On the J. C. Swon, on her last trip from St. Louis, Mr. Colmesnil, agent of the United States Treasury, had with him $500,000 in gold to transfer to this city. It was packed in boxes, and put into the saloon. The Swon got aground above Cape Girardieu, and the Edinburg, coming down, took off the passengers and the specie. On moving the latter, it was found that one of the boxes had been bored through the bottom, and the floor on which it stood also showed the mark of the augur with which the hole in the box had been made. But, like Hamlet, it "defied augury:" for not a single coin had been abstracted. augury;" for not a single coin had been abstracted. The carpenter's chest was found to have been broken open, and the tools missing. No one, it seems, was suspected of this attempt on the strong box of Uncle Sam.—N. O. Picayune, Jan. 1.
